Weekly Reflection.

The prayer of the humble.

American poet and recluse Emily Dickinson (1830-1886) wrote that prayer is 'an ascending of the horizons, where one is led into silence and mystery.' Many of us grew up with the idea that prayer is a matter of recitation. 'Say your prayers', we were told. As we grew older, we gradually came to realise that prayer is not always about speaking but is often a silence that acknowledges mystery.

Whether in speech or in silence, we approach the divine mystery in humility and penitence. The tax-collector in today's gospel story didn't dare even to raise his eyes to heaven. The Pharisee on the other hand was praying to himself. All the trophies of his spiritual life were held aloft to be admired.

The truly humble person is 'down to earth' and without self-deceiving notions or pretence. They know that the only way humankind can stand before God is in total trust, acknowledging our dependence and knowing that only the Lord can make us worthy. 'God, be merciful to me, a sinner.'

Fr. Owen Joe.
